Dear OPRA Market Data Recipients:

Section 10.06 “Start of Day Message” of the Data Recipient Interface Specification dated April 23, 2009, Version 1.14 contains an error. The Specification states that the message sequence number field contains a sequence number of zero. This is not always true. In certain situations, administrative messages would be sent prior to the start of day message being sent. The language in Version 1.15 of the Specification will be corrected to reflect how the system works, i.e., a sequence number higher than zero is possible. If your system expects only a zero, a change should be made as quickly as possible.

Very truly yours,

Joe Corrigan
Executive Director
